Quarterly fund commentary

On the back of a very strong Q1, equity markets demonstrated sustained momentum in Q2, while fixed income markets stumbled due to indications from the US Federal Reserve that they would maintain a hawkish stance in their battle against inflation. US headline inflation fell considerably to 4%, but core inflation was more stubborn, remaining above 5% and well ahead of the long-term target of 2%. Elsewhere, Eurozone inflation fell to 5.5% beating expectations. Germany entered a technical recession yet the Dax, Germany's major stock index, reached new all-time highs due to a combination of better-than-feared corporate earnings, easing energy prices and a post-COVID-19 reopening boost to China's economy have helped fuel the rally. In Q2, The Federal Reserve and the European Central Bank (ECB) raised rates by 0.25%. The Bank of England (BoE) surprised markets by raising rates by 0.5% as inflation came in hotter than expected. The BOE are caught between a rock and a hard place, as far as monetary policy is concerned, with rising interest rates beginning to impact mortgage holders.

US equities shrugged off any negative news in favour of a new central theme, AI (Artificial Intelligence). Nvidia, a US based chipmaker and now the fifth largest company in America, lead the way with a 51% increase in Q2. Microsoft, Meta, and Apple also surged as investors worked out how to gain exposure to the AI realm, with Apple hitting $3 trillion market cap. The lack of breadth in the US rally makes this one of the narrowest rallies in history with the top 10 S&P 500 companies accounting for 12.9 per cent of the broader index's 16.9 per cent first-half gain.

The Long Term Growth fund was up 2.7% during the quarter. European stocks rose 3.1% for the quarter, while Amundi MSCI World was up 6.5%. Bond indices were negative with Amundi Global Index Bond Fund and Amundi Global Inflation Linked Bond Fund down -1.1% and -1.5% respectively.

Looking at the performance highlights of some manager and tactical calls, the Vanguard S&P 500 Index Fund (EUR Hedged) was up 8% for the quarter, outperforming the benchmarks, as the Euro strengthened by 0.65% against the dollar. The Vanguard US Opportunities Fund outperformed global equities (6.7% vs 6.5%) over the same period. Blackrock Global Equity Income fund underperformed global equities by 3.9% (2.6% vs 6.5%) in Q2. The fund has a yield/value tilt without a strong bias to growth factors that have performed best this year. Growth and high-beta stocks were unsurprisingly the best performing factors in Q2, with low-volatility and high-dividend stocks being outpaced.

It was a tough quarter for Global Macro strategies, JP Morgan Global Macro and Ruffer, returning -7.5% and -6.2% respectively. AQR performed solidly with a 2.7% return. Nordea 10 returned -2.5%. An autocallable structured product that was held in portfolios recently matured, paying out a coupon of 12%. The payout occurred on the first anniversary of the purchase date and produced a favourable outcome in a period where the funding source, government bonds, fell by 4%.

Current asset allocation and investment committee commentary

Equities

Global equities were positive during Q2, with an overall increase of 6.5% (in Euro terms). The S&P 500 index showed even stronger growth of 8%. European equities lagged the World Index but were still positive, recording a rise of 3.1%. In contrast, China A shares declined by 10.9%. However, it is worth noting that broad Emerging Market ('EM') equities, represented by the Amundi MSCI EM Index Fund held in portfolios, rose by 0.5%.

Fixed Income

Indications from the US Federal Reserve that they would maintain a hawkish stance in their battle against inflation lead to upward revisions to year-end rate forecasts. Although some measures of inflation figures were encouraging, wage growth data meant tight monetary policy would be expected to remain. This hurt bond indices for the quarter with Amundi Global Index Bond Fund and Amundi Global Inflation Linked Bond Fund down -1.1% and -1.5% respectively. PIMCO Asia High-Yield fell -2.4% in Q2.

Alternatives

It was a tough quarter for Global Macro strategies, JP Morgan Global Macro and Ruffer, returning -7.5% and -6.2% respectively. AQR performed solidly with a 2.7% return. Nordea 10 returned -2.5%. An autocallable structured product that was held in portfolios recently matured, paying out a coupon of 12%. The payout occurred on the first anniversary of the purchase date and produced a favourable outcome in a period where the funding source, government bonds, fell by 4%.

Cash

On maturity of the ARB in June, we maintained a cash position as we seek an attractive opportunity to strike another ARB or potentially reallocate to the funding source, Government Bonds. Fund cash deposits currently yield 3%.

Underlying fund commentary quarter to date

SGA Global Growth, +5.4% (EUR)

The SGA Global Growth fund underperformed the MSCI World by 1.1% (5.4% vs 6.5%). The fund benefited from good stock selection in the IT sector with contributors including Australian cloud computing software company Atlassian (+33%), Salesforce (+57%), SAP (+32%) and Workday (+32%). The fund has a circa 4% position in Amazon which rose by 55% in H1 on the back of revenues and operating income that were ahead of consensus expectations. SGA continue to view the growth opportunity ahead for Amazon favourably given its strong positions in e-commerce, cloud computing, as well as its emerging growth opportunity in online advertising.

Wellington EM Research fund -0.9% (EUR)

The Wellington Emerging Markets (EM) Research fund underperformed the Amundi MSCI EM by -1.4% (-0.9% vs 0.5%). China has been a notable underperformer in EM this year with the MSCI China down about 5% in H1. The best performing markets include Brazil (+19% in USD), Argentina (+36%), Poland (+24%) and Mexico (+27%). Performance was helped by good stock selection in the Financials and IT sectors with names such as Banco Bradesco (+23%), BDO Unibank (+30%) and Bank Rakyat Indonesia (+19%) all outperforming.

Acadian Sustainable European Equity, +0.6%

The Acadian Sustainable European Equity fund returned 0.6% over the quarter, lagging Euro Stoxx return of 3.1% by 2.5%. The market environment so far in 2023 has been one where low-beta, defensive stocks have lagged as stocks with more volatile patterns of returns have performed best. This environment has negatively impacted the Acadian fund with sector allocation and stock selection both detracting. Overweights to defensive Consumer Staples and Utilities sectors detracted as did underweights to IT and Consumer Discretionary. Not owing Nvidia in the portfolio accounted for almost 1% of underperformance alone and the fund is heavily underweight the small number of large-cap US growth stocks that have dominated market returns this year. Acadian's approach of reducing volatility relative to the market by circa 30% will result in an underweight to these names given their more volatile share price movements.

Vanguard (Primecap) US Opportunities fund 6.7% (EUR)

The Vanguard US Opportunities fund has outperformed MSCI World by 0.2% in Q1 2023 (6.7% vs 6.5%). The market environment has been challenging for US active managers this year given the dominance of a small number of the largest index constituents. The fund holds only 6% to this group of eight stocks that have led the market so the fund's benchmark like return highlights how they have added value through stock selection in other areas.

BNY Mellon Global Equity, +5.4% (EUR)

The BNY Mellon Global Equity fund managed by Edinburgh based Walter Scott underperformed the MSCI World by 1.1% (5.4% vs 6.5%). Walter Scott holds only two of the eight US Growth stocks that in aggregate account for almost 20% of the MSCI World and have generated the bulk of market returns this year. However, the Walter Scott fund has more than overcome the negative impact of not owning these names through excellent stock selection elsewhere.

Changes to the fund

Towards the end of April, we removed a call on US Small Caps. The iShares S&P Small Caps ETF was first added to portfolios in October 2020 as a pro-cyclical play on the US economy, with the idea that small caps had not participated as much in the post-COVID-19 rally as they normally would be expected to. Following strong performance, the overweight was then reduced in December 2021, and the funding source changed from bonds to global equities in December 2022 when we returned portfolio allocations to neutral equities. Overall, the overweight to US small caps has delivered a return of 42% versus -13% for the call funding source.

In May we added an allocation to China A equities, funded from passive global equities, reflecting our view that Chinese equities are less sensitive to a US equity market correction than developed stock markets..
